Dedication

SUMMUM BONUM

By

Robert Browning

All the breath and the bloom of the year in the bag of one bee:
All the wonder and wealth of the mine
in the heart of one gem:
In the core of one pearl all the shade
and the shine of the sea:

All the patience, diligence, thoughtfulness, dedication, spiritual as well as physical beauty, understanding, helpfulness, encouragement, wisdom,
ingenuity, kindness, and love
In the character of one person

— Mrs. Frances E. Davis

Administration

We, here at N. C. S. D., are very fortunate in the caliber of people who are responsible for the administration of our school. Without exception, they are dedicated, hard-working, intelligent individuals. They have always accepted additional duties and responsibilities without complaint. Our school enjoys its national reputation and high standing in academic circles because of these people.

Thanks to Sponsors

Miss Martha W. Marshall

Mr. Robert C. Hoover

Mrs. Anne B. Starrett

The Class of 1965 wishes to express our deep appreciation to our three fine sponsors for the help and encouragement with which they have provided us. To Miss Marshall and Mr. Hoover—thanks a million for all the hours of labor you gave to enable us to earn the money for our Washington trip, our rings, and for many other pleasures.

To Mrs. Starrett—many thanks for teaching us as much as you could cram into our heads to help us to achieve the necessary requirements for graduation and for the time you spent with us on the Gallaudet entrance exams, but most of all the work you did with us on our annual.

Class Prophecy

By Ronald Tolley

A score of years have elapsed since I have been graduated from my old alma mater. Many changes have taken place during this period of time. President Johnson is now an old man but his great society has come to pass. Everyone in the world is friends and war has been abolished. The Negro and the white man are now brothers. Russia, a one-time enemy of the United States, is now one of our strongest allies. Peace on earth, good will toward men is now a reality.

One day while reading the local paper, I saw an article telling about the extraordinary prowess of the N.C.S.D. Bears who are now composed of both Negro and white football players. They have won the state championship five years in a row. Upon reading this article, my mind went back in time to the year 1965 when I had last seen my old classmates. I decided to try and locate them and see what mischief they were cooking up. I soon found out that this would be a most difficult chore as they had scattered all over the world.

It was my vacation and I wanted to take on a lot of sun and girls, so I first visited Hawaii. I was particularly interested in a vivacious hula dancer who reminded me of Lady Godiva. I asked her for a date, but she declined. She pointed far out to sea and, scanning my eyes, I beheld a most extraordinary sight. A tall man was skimming across the waves on a surf board. I never forget a face and his was somehow familiar. Turning back to the girl, I asked her who the tall man was. She replied that he was her mate. I got the message, so I asked if I might have her autograph. I almost flipped when I saw what she had written — Mrs. Paula Ann Lockamy! Not having time to wait and talk with her husband, I asked her if she knew where I might find the "Little Devil" of our class, namely Ricky Matsen. She said that the last she had heard of him he had gone out west to become a horse doctor. I boarded a fast jet and went to the small town of Dry Gulch to see what mischief he was into now. I didn't recognize him when I first saw him because he was wearing a Stetson hat and a beard, but he was still so small that he looked like a midget. I asked him how he was making out and he said that he was doing fine except for the huge horse flies that plagued him every time he came near a horse. That was why he made his cute wife, Donna, go along with him on his sick calls. It seems the flies were hypnotized by her beauty and were in a trance whenever she was around. They were living in a small dwelling made of sod and grass and scantily furnished. I asked him if he was happy and he said that with Donna he would not need to worry about going to heaven; he was already there. Their two children really made me think of little angels except for the boy — he was exactly like his father — cute as a monkey and twice as mean!

My next visit was to Grandfather Mountain to hear the "Sermon on the Mountain" as I thought it would do me good. It did me more good than I had thought it would. The sermon was given by a husband and wife team, both of whom were hard of hearing. I talked to them after the sermon and you can imagine my surprise when I found out that the evangelist was none other than Donald Shores, my old rival in the class of '65. His pretty wife was none other than Pat Pitts. They said that they had traveled the world over in their efforts to teach the Gospel to all the races of people. Donald said that he and Pat asked no payment for their services, but that they always took up a collection at the end of each service. I bid them farewell and continued on my search for the old graduates of 1965.

I next went to Winston-Salem, where my old friend, "Big John" D. Childers, was the owner of a large cigarette factory. He told me that business was booming and that he was in paradise because he could have all the "cigs" he wanted free of charge. But the employees were about to go daffy because "Big John" was constantly singing "Don't let the smoke get in your eyes." After congratulating him on his good fortune, I continued on my way.

As I was passing a department store, I happened to glance in the window and saw the World Series being played on a television set. One player seemed to strike me as being familiar and then his name came on the screen with the words "he just batted 1000 and won the World Series for the New York Yankees." The famous player was none other than Bud Kennedy, the best baseball player N.C.S.D. ever had. I wanted to talk to him, but as he was in St. Louis, I didn't have time to see him to congratulate him.

I now started for Morganton to visit my old alma mater and see if any of my old classmates were still around. "Big Bad Ed", the boss of Hoffmeyer Hall, had retired and Archie Johnson (who had loved kids all his life) was now the big boss. All of the boys, and probably the girls too, loved him as if he were their father. I next visited the Upper School where I had enjoyed so many wonderful hours flirting with the cute girls in the high school classes. I saw a young man pushing a mop bucket down the hall and noticed that he couldn't take his eyes off the girls, and that he could sign with them. I asked him his name and he said it was Mike. He wouldn't tell me his last name, but I knew it was good old Mike Roberts of the Class of '65. He was up to his old tricks, trying to make time with the girls; but he was getting the cold shoulder, because very few girls will make eyes at a lowly janitor. I asked Mike if he had heard anything from Jim Green, the muscleman of our class, and he said that Jim was working at Western Carolina Center as a masseur. He had developed into a real Hercules of a man and his patients were almost ready to enter the ring themselves. His cute wife, Judith, was his assistant in the gym.

It didn't take me long to find out what had become of Marvie Yarbrough. All I had to do was look in the society column of the New York

Daily News. He had become a playboy and was a millionaire. He was residing in a luxurious penthouse in a swanky district of New York City. His beautiful wife was an actress on Broadway. He actually had a whole harem of beautiful women. It seems he had made his fortune in the gambling houses of Las Vegas, the lucky dog! I bid him goodbye and continued on my adventure.

Brenda (my wife) and I had grown tired from traveling so much that we decided to drop in at a local carnival for some relaxation. As we were walking down the midway, I was hailed by a young woman with jet-black hair and dressed like a gypsy. She was a fortune teller at the carnival. She wanted to predict my future, so just to humor her I consented. As I sat across the oval table from her and stared into her eyes, she seemed vaguely familiar. After she had predicted my fortune, I asked her for her autograph. It read "The Madame Barbara Morgan, Teller of all Tales." Remembering that she and Lana Hickman had been close friends, I asked her where I might find Lana. She said that Lana was also in the carnival along with Elaine Stalcup. They had joined a troupe of dancing girls that was a smash hit at the carnival. I visited them for a while and watched their excellent performance. They said that I should visit the side shows. They didn't say why, but they were really mysterious about it. I took them up on their suggestion and got a shock when I saw who the Fat Lady in the freak show was. She was none other than Nell Stephens, the big wheel of the Class of '65. She said that she couldn't lose weight, so she just decided to cash in on her "weighty problem." Sharon Beaver was her substitute in the act.

I almost forgot about Juanita Darnell. She was always the jolliest one of our class. She had told me that she was going to work at Dr. Gradow's Pipe Factory in my old home town of Sparta. So I went there and sure enough she was working there and doing well at it. Her only problem was that there were not enough good looking men in that hick town. I bid her good luck and started back to Asheville where I was living with Brenda and our two children. I had enjoyed my trip and was pleased that all of my old classmates were happy with their various kinds of work. It only goes to show you that "Where there's a will, there's a way!"

Class Will

By Ricky Matsen

The Class of 1965 of the North Carolina School for the Deaf do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament:

I, Sharon Beaver, bequeath my big hips to Judy Phillips.

I, Johnnie Childers, promise to leave my old beat-up football helmet to any poor soul who wants a headache.

I, Juanita Darnell, leave my love for flirting with the young boys to Mary Gibbs.

I, Jimmy Green, bequeath to Mike Cooke my love and admiration for Duke University.

I, Lana Hickman, leave my love for staying in my room on week ends to Trudy Eaves.

I, Archie Johnson, leave my habit of getting up early to Jack Mitchell.

I, Bud Kennedy, donate my wonderful baseball skill to Virgil Jockisch.

I, Ann Lisenby, leave my extraordinary intelligence to Faye Berrong.

I, Ray Lockamy, leave my skill and love of participating in all sports to Ray Blanks.

I, Ricky Matsen, leave my short stature to Jerry Phillips.

I, Barbara Morgan, leave my jet-black hair to Judith McGee.

I, Pat Pitts, leave my habit of hysterical laughing to Vicky Tart.

I, Mike Roberts, leave my hate of taking a shower to James Meek.

I, Donnie Shores, bequeath my ambition to become a deacon to Tommy Edwards.

I, Elaine Stalcup, leave my shapely figure to Nell Phillips.

I, Nell Stephens, donate all of my glamorous make-up to Dianne Cooley.

I, Ronald Tolley. leave my awful math grades to Billy Jernigan.

I, Marvie Yarbrough, want to donate my habit of fussing with women to Roger Moss.

In witness thereof, we affix our seal to this our last will and testament.

Washington, D. C. Trip

By Ricky Matsen

The class of 1965 took their trip to Washington in the fall of this year. We went on the new bus so we chose Mr. Bobby Clark to be our chauffeur. Miss Marshall and Mr. Hoover, who are our sponsors, also went with us.

We left the campus on Tuesday afternoon, September 22, at about 2:30. It was a warm, clear day, and we were all ready for the trip. We ate bag lunches for supper which the kitchen staff had prepared for us. We got soft drinks at a filling station.

Our first long stop was at Wilson, where we visited Mr. McAdams. He showed us all around the new Eastern N. C. School for the Deaf. It has not been completed yet. After bidding Mr. McAdams and his wife goodbye, we got the show on the road again.

We arrived in Washington at about 4:00 a.m. Wednesday morning. The first glimpse we caught of the Capitol City of the United States was from a sloping highway in Virginia. The lights looked so bright and beautiful. Even at this early hour, we were all wide awake. We went straight to Gallaudet College where we showered and changed clothes. Then we toured the campus and visited with fellow Tar Heels. We had breakfast at the College and then at about 9:00 our D. C. Transit bus came to pick us up for a tour of the city. We had a real nice bus driver whose home is in Hendersonville, N. C. He had moved to Washington 11 years ago.

First, we visited the Lincoln Memorial. From there, we went to Arlington National Cemetery where we saw the Iwo Jima Memorial, dedicated to the men of the United States Marine Corps who died during World War II. From there we went to the grave of the late President John Kennedy and the Lee Mansion. Then we saw the Change of Guards at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. We were all pretty tired but when the driver of our bus asked us if we wanted to go to the Wax Museum, we all consented. It was only a few blocks away. The people looked so real, I thought they were really breathing.

By that time it was 12:30 so we drove to the Harrington Hotel where we had rooms. After we had checked in, we went into the hotel restaurant to have lunch. You could order anything you wanted and all you wanted. It was really delicious. After lunch we went up to our rooms and rested for a while before starting out again.

That afternoon we went to the Capitol, where we visited the Senate and the House of Representatives. In the Senate, it felt so good to get in a nice, soft chair that I fell asleep right in the middle of a meeting. After we had toured the Capitol, we visited the Supreme Court Building and drove around the city for a while.

We went back to the hotel and most of us just stretched out on our beds and rested, but others, who were the restless type, sat up and watched TV.

That night we went to the Old Europe Restaurant and had a very good dinner. After supper we were all worn out from the day's events. We went back to the hotel and watched TV. Some of us went straight into dreamland.

The next morning we had a hearty breakfast in the hotel restaurant. Then, after breakfast we visited the White House. It is a very beautiful place. From there we went to the F.B.I. building. A man who knew some signs was our guide. He showed us all around the building. Then we saw one of the F.B.I. agents shoot a 38 caliber pistol and an automatic machine gun at a target.

After we had finished our tour of the F.B.I., we drove to Maryland and toured the University of Maryland campus. We had lunch in a resturant just outside of the college. Most of us had spaghetti or pizza.

After we ate, we decided to go to the National Zoological Park. We all saw someone there who was related to us! After saying goodbye to our kinfolks, we started back to the hotel and went shopping. I saw a coin shop and stayed there for an hour and a half ($$$$)!

We ate supper in the hotel and after supper we went to the Town Theatre to see a movie. It was "A Shot in the Dark." It was real funny. After the show we walked back to the hotel and some of us had a late snack.

The next morning we had a good breakfast at the hotel and then we checked out before making a last tour of the city. We visited the Washington Monument and such a beautiful view we got from the top! From there we went to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Too bad they wouldn't give out free samples! After that we visited the Smithsonian Institute, The National Pathology Museum of the Armed Forces, and we toured some of the business district of Washington.

Then we returned to Gallaudet College to board our bus for the long trip home. At about 2:00, after saying goodbye to our bus driver and friends, we took our last look at our capitol city.

We didn't have lunch until 4:30 that afternoon at a Howard Johnson Restaurant in Fredricksburg, Virginia.

We had no trouble with the bus and we all felt fine except we were all worn out. We ate dinner in Mocksville at 10:30. That is an awful late hour to be eating dinner!

We got back to our alma mater at about 12:30. Most of us went straight to bed but others sat up and talked about the wonderful time we had had in Washington, D. C.
